This unique 3-day Tara retreat with Antoaneta will empower you with several simple and effective practices, from esoteric and Western texts, to awaken the power of compassion within yourself. Living with an open heart can be a daily reality. We often reach out for love to fulfill our personal needs and desires. This is natural; however this is just a limited way of perceiving love. In this retreat, you will learn how to transcend your limited personal relationship with love to reveal something much more profound; an impersonal, unchanging, and infinite dimension within yourself. This deeper dimension of love is not asking for something in return. It is a helping hand for those in suffering. When your love is not your love anymore, but you are love and wisdom, then you will come to understand the true power of compassion. This retreat will assist you in attuning more with your heart than the mind resulting in greater insight into the healing power of truth, love, kindness and compassion. A part of this retreat will include an opportunity to observe noble silence. Namaste.
